RBA Wins National Residential Architect Award

Omaha architecture firm, Randy Brown Architects LLC, was honored with a 2010 National Residential Architect Design Award. The awards, sponsored by Residential Architect magazine, honor the best home design projects from across the country. The winning project was the eco friendly Elm residence located in Hidden Creek subdivision in Omaha, NE. The awards will be presented at the AIA National Convention in June in Miami. The project is also scheduled to be published in the June issue of Residential Architect.
